DEPUTY COLLECTOR FOR ARIZONA BEGINS DUTIES.

Richard De Kuhn of Prescott, who was recently appointed deputy internal revenue collector for Arizona, has gone for an official visit to the headquarters office of the internal revenue department of Arizona and New Mexico, at Santa Fe, New Mexico. He will return to Phoenix, where he will establish his office about June 1.

Judge De Kuhn, as he is familiarly known to his friends in Yavapai county, has been a resident of the Cherry creek district for the past thirty years, coming there from the east in the capacity of mining superintendent, having charge of the business of the Mockingbird Mining company.

Before leaving he gave into the keeping of his son the properties of the Lion Gold Mining company, making him the company's representative in that district. The new deputy collector first saw the light of day in the city of Baltimore, Maryland, about 61 years ago, where he grew up to man's estate, with the exception of the time spent in the Rocky Hill academy at Elliptic Falls, of which he is a graduate.

In the years of 1868 and 1869 he served in a similar capacity in his native state, and the state of Virginia, which was then under provisional government, during the first administration of General Grant as president of the United States. Although advanced in years he is yet in the prime of life, and as hale and hearty as any man of forty. He possesses a wide fund of information, having served in various official capacities during his career, being especially well versed in the duties of the position to which he has been recently appointed.

This speculation as to what Congress will do when the rate bill debate ends, is most encouraging. It is one of the few intimations we have had that the rate bill debate is going to have an end.

Why Suffer from Rheumatism?

Why suffer from rheumatism when one application of Chamberlain's Pain Balm will relieve the pain? The quick relief which this liniment affords makes rest and sleep possible, and that alone is worth many times its cost. Many who have used it hoping only for a short relief from suffering have been happily surprised to find that after awhile the relief became permanent. Mrs. V. H. Leggett of Yum Yum, Tennessee, U. S. A., writes: "I am a great sufferer from rheumatism, all over from head to foot, and Chamberlain's Pain Balm is the only thing that will relieve the pain." Sold by all druggists.

MINING CLAIM TAXATION IN COLORADO

Final Decision By State Supreme Court in Teller County Cases Decides Important Question for Mine Owners.

Assessors' Plan of Assessment Was in Some Respects Novel, and Was Based Upon Market Value of Stock.

DENVER, May 25.—By a number of decisions handed down a few days ago by the State Supreme Court the Teller county tax cases, involving a large number of mines have been finally settled in favor of the mine owners. Practically all of the mines in Teller county were originally involved in this dispute. M. B. Lysight, county assessor, since deceased, placed a valuation upon mining properties considerably in excess of the valuations usually made under the provisions of the state law, and also greater than the assessed valuation of similar properties in other counties. This assessment, if it had stood, would have compelled Teller county to bear a disproportionately large share of the burden of the state taxation. As provided by law, the mine owners appealed from the assessor to board of county commissioners and the board sustained the assessors' appeal. The assessors then taken from the commissioners to the District Court and this court decided in favor of the mine owners by ordering a reduction of the assessment. The assessor and commissioners appealed from the District Court. A decision on this appeal was rendered by the Court of Appeals about two years ago, and a similar ruling has been made in the decisions just handed down by the State Supreme Court. The cases in which the decision was rendered by the higher court are as follows:

The Board of County Commissioners of Teller County vs. The Pinnacle Gold Mining Company, and M. D. Lysight, County Assessor, and Board of County Commissioners of Teller County vs. The C. K. & N. Mining Company, dismissed.

The Supreme Court coincided with the Court of Appeals in the reason given for the dismissal of the cases. In the opinion of both courts there is no appeal under the law in such cases from the District Court, and the decision of the latter is final. All of the cases are dismissed for lack of jurisdiction.

Mr. Lysight's plan of assessment was in some respects novel. In the assessment of producing mines he followed the plan laid down in the statutes, but upon unproductive territory of both producers and non-producers he placed an additional value. His valuation was based in part upon the market price of the stock of the companies owning the land, and in part upon the location of the land with reference to certain of the most productive mines of the district. Around several centers, such as the Portland and the Victor, he drew concentric circles, and he assessed the property according to a kind of a zone system. The refusal of the court to allow the Lysight valuation puts Teller county on a basis of equality with the other counties of the state.

Under the Colorado law, mining claims for purposes of assessment are divided into two classes—producing and non-producing. At the time Mr. Lysight was assessor, a non-producing mining claim was legally defined as a claim whose production was less than $1,000. At the present time the law defines a non-producing claim as one whose annual production is less than $5,000. Non-producing claims are given an assessed valuation of one-fourth of $5,000, which amounts to $1,250. The law provides that producing claims shall be given an assessed valuation of one-fourth of the gross proceeds of their production. The net proceeds are defined as the gross proceeds less the cost of extracting the ore from the mine, shipping it to a reduction plant, and the cost of treatment. The law further provides that if the net proceeds exceed one-fourth of the gross proceeds the assessed valuation of the claim shall be the amount of the net proceeds. If, for example, the gross proceeds from the annual production of a mine are $1,000,000, the assessed valuation of that mine under the law would be $250,000 if the latter amount is greater than the net proceeds. Suppose, however, that the cost of taking the ore from the mine, the freight charges together amount to only $300,000, then the net proceeds of the mine would be $700,000 and the assessed valuation, under the law, would be $700,000.

An additional interest to the Colorado law providing for the taxation of mining claims is given at the present time by the fact that a number of mining companies want to have assessments in mining drainage districts made on the same basis. It is proposed to make producing and non-producing mining claims, and all other property in the district, bear their part of the expense of constructing drainage tunnels; every one contributing according to the assessed valuation of his property under the state law.

Some one makes the wholly superficial announcement that Carnegie will provide San Francisco's new libraries. The logic of the situation made any other assumption impossible.

AN OPPORTUNITY FOR INVESTMENT

The Brooks Consolidated Copper Co.

Capital $1,000,000 1,000,000 Shares

PAR VALUE $1 EACH

The property of this company consists of 251 1-4 pertenencias, or about 620 acres of mineral ground, situated in the Ajo Mountains, Sonora, Mexico, about 40 miles south of Bisbee, and about 30 miles a little north of east from Cananea.

This property has been very favorably reported upon by a number of mining experts, who have stated that it has every indication of developing into a large and paying mine, in fact, another Bisbee or Cananea.

The company at present is actively engaged in opening up the property, which from the work already done, shows the ledge to be unusually wide, and about one mile in length. From assays made of ore taken from the surface workings, values as high as 22 1-2 per cent. copper were obtained, with good values in gold and silver.

In order to raise sufficient funds to carry on the development work on a large scale, this company is now offering stock for sale at par, in four installment payments, at intervals of three months each, or for cash in full as preferred.

This stock is now for sale by G. O. Schaefer, Secretary and Treasurer of the company, at the office of Judge E. J. Brown, Main Street, Bisbee, Arizona.
